  - BRT process is not yet over. UNL will have an additional $5.2M in permanent reductions in the coming FY. State of NE legislative appropriations hearing scheduled for 2/14/18 where President Bounds will provide realistic impact of an additional funding reduction.
- Academic Planning Committee Budget Reduction & Reallocation process
  - Continuing to move forward with budget adjustments.
- Association Future Ad Hoc Committee Update
  - Committee met, with Karen Kassebaum in attendance. Kassebaum recommended opening this conversation up to whole UNL community.

Vice President/President Elect Report - Tony Lazarowicz
Faculty Senate Meeting
- Chancellor Green provide updates. He spoke about 3 topics: a) budget cuts b) freedom of speech / expression policy; c) recent incident
  A) With the budget cut, he indicates that the governor has recommended a 2% reduction ($5.2 million) for the remainder of this year and a 4% reduction ($11.5 million) as an ongoing permanent reduction starting in July. He discussed the process, but indicates a letter should be forthcoming later this week that will outline more details. Historically, there has been a process when working with the appropriations committee that they could speak in generalities in order to determine impacts to the system. That said, now they will have to provide specific examples of what would be cut given the impact of a 2% reduction. What he could share is that the departments would be notified in person about this, and it could impact as many as 6 colleges and 50 positions (specifically eliminating some degree-granting programs). The process must still go through APC, but they will have to provide some of that up-front of their initial thinking.

B) Freedom of expression/free speech policy was approved by Board of Regents. He feels good about the policy and says it was initially crafted through verbiage used by AAUP of academic freedom.

C) He acknowledge the recent student incident that is making headlines and says that we need to trust that the appropriate people are reviewing all information and are committed to ensuring the safety of our students.

- His final comments he wanted to impress upon us is that these individual instances are not indicative of who we are and do not define us. We must remember that what we do here is important.

- There was also an update from the Chancellor’s Commission on the Status of Women. There were comments from staff that we have not made much progress on lactation spaces on campus, and there is concern about leave of absence policies for new mothers, particularly for international post-doc mothers and their visa status.
